I'm going to talk about a woman that I met in the English-speaking club in my city. I joined it last month. On my first day, I was very nervous. Then, the old woman sitting next to me spoke to me. She said, "I'm Yoshiko. I'm 80 years old. I have traveled around the world since I was 65 years old. I wanted to speak English better. So I started studying it. Every day I study it for two hours." I was surprised because she was older than my grandmother. She looked so young. She also said, "Through learning English, I can be friends with a lot of people from abroad and younger people who want to learn English like you. Let's have fun!" She looked happy. I learned from her that to keep on learning makes people young.
